as we see it

Whatever television's shortcomings as an entertainment medium may be, it can't be matched as America's favorite scapegoat. If there's trouble anywhere, TV is blamed.

Comes now a prominent California orthodontist with a brand new reason for crooked teeth in youngsters. You guessed it — television. "Television malocclusion," the Associated Press reports the specialist as saying, "is an abnormal arrangement of the teeth likely to be caused by Junior's cradling his jaw in his hand as he watches television."

It would be an exceptional Junior indeed who could sit in one position long enough to make his teeth assume new angles. The youngsters we've seen at TV sets are bouncing all over the place, helping the goodies shoot down the baddies, assisting spacemen in rocket takeoffs, and generally getting a lot more exercise than the actors they're allegedly watching.

We have orthodontists in our town too, and when queried about this "television malocclusion" one of them said, "Well, it could happen if a kid sat in the same position hour after hour, day after day. But it would be a pretty rare case."

A much more serious problem for dentists, he said, is the frequency with which ladies chip their teeth on bobbie pins, and while pulling corks out of bottles with their teeth. "Happens quite often," he said.

Ladies, please be careful. Don't open bobbie pins with your teeth—use your fingers. Better to bust a nail than chip a tooth. As for yanking corks with your choppers, kindly desist from the practice immediately.

And kids, dodge malocclusion by jumping around while you watch TV. That is, until some chiropodist announces that you're all getting flat feet from watching television.—M. P.

Martin and Lewis' backyard movies

ALL THE BOYS USE IS $60,000 IN EQUIPMENT, FILM STARS and GOLD KEYS

ON A traffic-packed Sunday afternoon, cruising police cars on Sunset Boulevard spotted a mile-long jam. At one end of it several thousand laughing spectators were clustered around two young men cavorting on the back of a swanky convertible.

They were Jerry Lewis and Dean Martin, filming home movies for fun —and future.

To the good neighbors in the Los Angeles suburb of Pacific Palisades, where Lewis is right honorable mayor, his antics are never surprising, particularly in this hobby. Three nights weekly until past midnight and all of Sunday for the past two years he, Martin and such other Hollywood celebrities as Janet Leigh, Tony Curtis, Jeff Chandler, Shelley Winters, Mona Freeman and John Barrymore, Jr. happily labor over their backyard films.

Named after Lewis' two sons, Gary,

7, and Ronnie, 3, Gar-Ron Productions is housed in a $50,000 "playhouse" back of the Lewis home. Each member has a gold key to the building equipped with $60,000 in cameras, tape recorders, darkrooms, projectors and other 16mm movie equipment.

Regular meetings are held here to discuss future projects, assign jobs to the two dozen members—and to collect the $10 monthly dues. The six Danny Arnold; NBC casting director Howard Ross supervises selection of talent; publicist Jack Keller handles props and musical scores; Mrs. Ross is the script girl; Mrs. Keller is in charge of wardrobe; Martin, Curtis and the others act and, of course, Lewis is director and cameraman. Practically every star in Hollywood is eager to participate in these films but "guest" talent is seldom invited.

No funny stuff: Martin and Lewis listen to a recording before it is put on film.

pictures made so far have cost some two to three thousand dollars apiece so Lewis foots the remainder of the bills.

Each picture is carefully planned. Story conferences are held, with members offering suggestions. Each member is assigned a job and the production gets underway.

Scripts are prepared by writer

So far Gar-Ron has completed six pictures of 45 to 70 minutes in length. Each of these is a satire on a major film. The first was Gar-Ron Varieties, mocking a typical MGM musical. The Re-Enforcer took off on The Enforcer with Humphrey Bogart. Spot In The Shade satirized A Place In The Sun.

Watch On The Lime was a farce of Watch On The Rhine, followed by Lewis sizing up Janet Leigh's acting. That's Mona Freeman with back to camera.

Cameraman Lewis finds Martin in focus for a change while Mrs. Lewis looks bewildered and, right, holds on to Tony Curtis as he signals the start of a scene.

Fairfax Avenue, a take-off on Sunset Boulevard. Just completed is a take-off on Come Back, Little Sheba. The next will be shot in Europe this summer while Martin and Lewis barnstorm and vacation for a couple of months.

All this prompts the easy-going Martin to regard his energetic partner with alarm. But to Lewis this hobby is insurance for the future when his acting days are over. It has paid off, for producer Hal Wallis has promised a directing assignment.

IN THE CAST

WITH a song, a strut and a long memory, Eddie Jackson has come far since his singing waiter days.

The strut, his outstanding professional characteristic, dates back to 1910 when he observed George Walker of Bert Williams and Walker do it. Adding a top hat and cane, it became his trademark.

Born in Brooklyn on February 19, 1896, Jackson got his first professional work as a singing waiter in 1914.

A few years later, he and his partner, Eddie Murray, joined Jimmy Durante's band at the Alamo in New York. Jackson and Murray specialized in jazz favorites and moved to the Tokyo at 45th Street and Broadway.

Coney and Broadway

Shortly after the Armistice, Jackson and a new partner, Dot Taylor, joined Durante and alternated between Coney and Broadway. Jackson has been with Durante since, as partner and inseparable friend. In 1924 Jackson, Durante, Harry Harris and Frank Nolan opened the Club Durant. Lou Clayton bought out Harris, and the famous team of Clayton, Jackson and Durante was formed.

After two seasons they opened at Manhattan's Club Dover with business so good after a fortnight that Dover owner, Nate Brooks, made them partners.

The trio made their first film in 1929, Road House Nights, with Helen Morgan and Charlie Ruggles. In 1930 they appeared in Ziegfeld's Show Girl with Ruby Keeler. Later, they played in night clubs and theaters, and, in 1950, Jackson and Durante did their first television show for NBC. Jackson lives in West Hollywood with his wife, the former Jean Kanter.

Durante and Jackson: a long road.

Jackson is fond of singing the old numbers he sang when he first started as an entertainer. "You just couldn't refuse to sing a song or tell someone you didn't know the words. If you didn't know the words, you made them up and if you didn't know a tune, you improvised.

"If someone asked you to sing Down Home Where The Cherry Blossoms Grow, you began to sing those words to any melody, hoping the guy was too far gone to realize it was not his favorite song."

All this faking developed a fabulous memory in Jackson and when one of their All Star Revues was lacking material, all the director did was signal the song 'n' dance man and he came up with the appropriate tune.

TV PROVES HOUSEWIVES DO HAVE TIME FOR CRYING OUT LOUD

Jean McBride, Peggy McCay and Bert Thomas. Jean is faking paralysis, which is about par for the show, Love of Life.

THE term "soap opera" probably first came into existence as a result of some invalid husband finding himself force-fed on a diet of daytime radio. Soap opera, in case there's anyone left who doesn't know, refers to the endless chain of daytime radio serials. It's called soap opera because most of these shows are sponsored by soap manufacturers and most of them cling to a story line that suggests that life is pretty miserable, but just wait, it'll get worse.

The sages of television used to say that it would never happen to TV. Their reasoning: On radio, housewives could have a good cry by just tuning in on the latest courtroom scene of Our Gal Sunday while performing household chores. But TV required complete attention and housewives are too busy to have time to sit down and watch. The only trouble with this theory is that it's wrong. CBS now has three soap operas on TV, immediately following one another and it's toying with the idea of launching more. The soap sponsors say it's fine with them and apparently the housewives are only too happy. One conclusion that can be drawn is that maybe housewives haven't so much to do after all.

TV's most successful soaper at present is Search For Tomorrow, the untidy life story of Jo Ann Barron, who is knee-deep in emotion at this point because the mother of her dead husband has taken her little girl away from her. After a long courtroom fight, Jo Ann finally unearthed some information that enabled her to win back her little girl. But Grandma is one up again. She has taken little Patti (that's the kid's name) and left town, leaving no forwarding address.

Battling Search For Tomorrow for top daytime TV ratings is Guiding Light, the hoary radio stand-by. This show is the continuing adventures of the Bauer family, particularly daughter Meta, who now is beset by the problem of her friend Kathy Grant. Kathy's first husband died when they were only two months married and, on the rebound, she married again. The trouble is that she's going to have a baby, sired by her first husband and she is afraid to tell her second husband. But Meta will probably straighten this out with some of that handy advice which she exudes.

The third of the CBS big three is Love of Life, a title which defies understanding when you analyze the story content. Love of Life is the true-to-life story of Vanessa Dale, a woman struggling for human dignity. Vanessa's frustration stems from her inability to marry Matt Slocum and settle down like any other hard working girl. In the way is Vanessa's sister Meg, who having divorced one husband, now has eyes for Matt. Matt doesn't even notice Meg, which has led to an impossible situation. Meg is pulling a sick act, pretending that she is paralyzed. Sis Vanessa, who after all is only human, won't abandon Meg in her time of need. Therefore, she won't marry Matt until Meg recovers.

Grandma and Grandpa Barron, in Search for Tomorrow, watch widowed Jo Ann Barron (Mary Stuart) take her daughter (Lynn Loring) from them—but not for long.

There's a theory that the reason so many women listen or watch soap opera is that by living vicariously with the tragedy of soap opera, their own lives take on a sunny cast. Another premise has it that soap opera is merely another example of Aristotle's theory of the drama, with the soapers providing an emotional purge. But Aristotle also said that a drama consists of a beginning, a middle and an end. So the flaw becomes apparent. All soap operas have beginnings and middles. But they never end.

How to take

CANDID PICTURES

Correct

Rosalind Russell snapped on TV screen at 1/10th of a second and the camera lens opened to 4.5.

By Frank B. Johnston

YOU CAN make good candid pictures from your television screen at home, if you will follow certain definite procedures.

One thing to guard against is shutter speeds faster than 1/30th of a second. Because your television screen forms a complete picture 30 times every second, any faster shutter speed will show dark streaks.

Aside from this warning, these are the rules designed to produce excellent quality photographs:

1. Screen brightness and contrast should be set at normal. Take into consideration the lighting of the scene on the screen, which varies from show to show. Generally, closeups of individuals will photograph better than group scenes.

2. Be sure the picture on the screen is focused sharply.

3. Because of the slow exposures, it is necessary to support the camera on a tripod or firm table.

4. The average distance from camera lens to television screen of a 17 to 20 inch tube is 2½ to 3½ feet.

This will vary with different lenses and cameras. For focusing type with ground glass, or reflex type, simply focus and frame for composition. For 35-mm or small camera with range finder, set at about 3½ feet.

With these cameras be sure to allow for parallax, which is the difference between the height of the view finder and the taking lens. Otherwise, at this distance from the screen, the picture which appears in the viewer will not be entirely in range of the taking lens. A few experiments will determine the proper position of the camera.

The folding type camera with distance scale and view finder only usually can be focused down only to six feet. A Porta lens No. 1 can be placed in front of the camera lens and the camera set 33 inches from the screen for close-up photos.

The box camera is not recommended. It must be six feet from the screen and requires a two-second exposure, which means the subject must be absolutely still for that length of time.

5. Film should be Panchromatic with at least an A.S.A. rating of Tungsten 80.

6. No flash bulbs should be used.

7. All lights should be extinguished after equipment is set up. This will eliminate reflections on the TV screen and camera lens.

8. Exposures: 1/30th second at 2.5; 1/25 at 2.8; 1/10 at 4.5; 1/5 at 5:6; 1/2 at 8 and 1 second at 11.

If you depend on commercial finishing, you must follow the exposure chart. If you are fortunate enough to have your own darkroom and do your own developing, you may vary slightly on development, exposure and printing to suit your needs.

In this article, I have tried to present clearly, without too much technical detail, the steps in making candid pictures from your television screen. If you will follow these steps, I believe you will obtain good pictures.

TV's Week: Subscription TV got a hearty pat on the back recently when 65 per cent of those replying to a post card survey indicated they would pay one dollar to see a championship fight on their home TV sets via the pay-as-you-see method. Prof. H. H. Remmers, who directed the survey for the Purdue University Opinion Panel, obtained his findings from 100,000 post cards sent to TV Guide subscribers in the Chicago-Milwaukee area.

Fran Allison

Chicago's charming Fran Allison was the recent subject on Ralph Edwards' This Is Your Life TV series, in one of the most moving stories to date. Highlight was Burr Tillstrom's simple but sincere tribute to Fran for her charity, humility, great artistry and sense of humor.

Dave Garroway flies to Europe June 11 for a three-week vacation during which he'll see the famous Le Mans sports car race in France.

Gale Storm steps out of My Little Margie's shoes long enough to act mature—as hostess to the National Federation of Press Women's convention in Los Angeles.

Burning Face Dept.: Telemeter pay-as-you-see TV test in Palm Springs has been re-scheduled to start Sept. 15. Test had been set earlier but was postponed. TV Guide erred in reporting that the reason for postponement was lack of electrical power. The desert city has electricity to burn!

Advance Tips on Shows: Two program replacements for Patti Page may emerge as a permanent series in the fall. Patti's vacation substitutes will feature top Broadway music hits performed by Broadway stars. First guest (June 3 show) was soprano Leontyne Price, star of Porgy and Bess. Sponsors of the Page opus are seeking an alternate-week deal with Cavalcade of America on NBC.

Frank Lovejoy

Shows in the Works: Frank Lovejoy, who leaped from radio to choice movie roles, is making the circle complete with TV plans. Frank's working on a test film of his former radio starrer, Night Beat, using its original Chicago locale.

Letters to the Editor

—YOU TELL TELEVISION

Please address all letters to Managing Editor, c/o TV GUIDE, 185 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago 1, Ill.

Open Letter to Hazel

. . . You probably haven't a sense of humor and you make it obvious with your asinine letter about Burns and Allen (May 15 issue). For years these two great people have endeared themselves to me by being so funny. I think it's you who have gone a little too far, and I doubt very much if we, the millions who enjoy them, will miss you as a fellow spectator.

Leon Lutz, Chicago

Maggie Does It Again

. . . Three cheers for Margaret Truman. Quite a switch from the singer role, but we believe a good switch. We loved her performance on Milton Berle's show and hope to see lots more of her on light comedy.

Mr. & Mrs. Ralph Walker, South Bend

Waring Defender

. . . I think that Mrs. Rhae Swisher does Fred Waring a great injustice by saying he 'messes up the illusion' on his own show (May 22 issue). Furthermore, he has a pleasant manner, and I think you do him an injustice by comparing him with a Keystone Cop. They are remembered for their quick, exaggerated movements . . .

Eleanor Kristy, Chicago

Bliss And Punishment

. . . We would like to know why the sponsors of the Jackie Gleason show allow such a fellow to try to sell their products to the public. He is about the most ignorant emcee on TV . . . tells the same jokes over and over, and takes up the time of other good entertainers . . . The ignorance he has is bliss to him, but much suffering to his viewers.

J. O. Gibbs, Chicago

Saga Of Mixed Emotions

. . . Even my four-year-old turns off the set when Captain Video, Kids Karnival Kwiz and Elmer The Elephant come on—they're the corniest on TV. Captain Video is too conceited for his own good, Natco never knows his script, and John Conrad doesn't seem to enjoy his work . . .

LEE SCHOOLER

Rates

Lee tries a bit of charm via the telephone — a Schooler device to lure public figures to the hot seats of "Press Conference."

LEE Schooler, a tall gentleman with a retreating hairline and a cherubic expression, is one of Chicago's shrewdest public relations men. Head of Our Town's Public Relations Board, he has also piloted the local public service TV show, "Press Conference," ever since its debut nearly two years ago.

How this enterprising young man notched a spot for himself in this most competitive field is the story of Lee Schooler's life. After a basic education in Chicago (Lakeview high school, Jack and Jill players and radio acting), Lee decided on the dentistry profession as his goal. He was within 18 months of obtaining his D.D.S. degree when he came to the conclusion that molars and Schooler didn't mix. Although he attended Wright Junior College, Northwestern University, Central Y.M.C.A. College, University of Illinois and University of Chicago, he settled for a Bachelor of Science degree.

His ensuing army career introduced him to public relations work. While in the service, he was assigned to the Bureau of Public Relations in the Army Medical Department. Following his discharge in 1945, he worked as a free lance writer and actor in New York. Then in 1946, Lee returned to Chicago where the following year he founded the Public Relations Board.

Sec. of State John F. Dulles

Adlai Stevenson

Mayor Martin Kennelly

His Guests

"PRESS Conference," local grandson of "Meet The Press," puts a public figure on the hot seat every Tuesday night (7:30, WGN-TV) while a panel of Chicago newspapermen bombard him with questions. Here's how Lee Schooler, program founder and moderator, rates his guests:

JACOB ARVEY—most colorful guest. The Democratic National Committeeman displayed a witty sense of humor. After TV makeup artists completed their pancake job on Arvey's bald pate, Jake proudly referred to it as his "no glare top."

JOHN BABB—most "disarmed" guest. The Sheriff, who never travels without a gun, was relieved of his firearm.

MAYOR MARTIN KENNELLY—most "absent" guest. His Honor has refused numerous offers to appear on the show. Lee thus contends the mayor has not fulfilled completely his obligation as a public servant.

JOHN GUTNECHT—top strategist. The state's attorney has learned that the best defense is an offense, an old army tactic.

HELEN HAYES—one of the most charming visitors. Although prim and a trifle awed by the camera at first, she melted quickly when the subject of the theater was introduced.

CHARLES BANE and ROBERT MERRIAM—most newsworthy guests. Merriam, who makes news, has been on the show four times. Bane, chief counsel of the City Crime Investigating Committee, first revealed on "Press Conference" his belief that at least 10 percent of the Chicago police force was dishonest.

REV. FRANCIS STOCKWELL—most emotionally-stimulating guest. The Reverend appeared on the 1952 Christmas show, shortly after his release from a Communist prison camp in China.

CLARENCE WAGNER—shrewdest guest. Alderman Wagner showed professional political polish in fencing and parrying with the panel.

JOHN BOYLE—maddest guest! Former State's Attorney Boyle, noted for his low boiling point, displayed the most frequent outbursts of temper.

ADLAI STEVENSON—most charming male guest.

JIM FARLEY—unquestionably the smoothest guest; also, one of the friendliest.

PAUL DOUGLAS—The Illinois senator was the most eager to please.

JOHN FOSTER DULLES—clearest thinker. The Secretary of State explained thorny foreign affairs problems in such a lucid manner panelists were struck speechless.

"MR. X"—most sober guest. "Mr. X," a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, appeared on the show blindfolded. Panelists addressed him as "Mr. Sober."

THEY NOW?

HOW OFTEN HAVE YOU wondered what became of Chicago's early TV stars? . . . People like Luckey North, Pat Flanagan, the old Garroway crew, Bette Chapel, Ransom Sherman ? Their names, though absent from the current TV rosters, will be never erased from the Windy City TV records. And their contributions won't be among the soon-forgotten souvenirs of early television.

Take the Garroway gang, for instance. Their story goes back four years to the time Dave made his big splash as the low-pressured emcee of "Garroway At Large." When the big TV squeeze came from both coasts, the Ol' Tiger accepted NBC's New York offer for a morning opus. He's been in Gotham ever since. Latest rumor is that NBC may revive his original show next fall. If so, Dave will probably slip away from "Today" and go back to night life as a casual emcee.

Freelancing Pays Off

With her nonchalant boss off to New York's jungle, Connie Russell set out on her own bandwagon. After a brief N. Y. fling, she flew to Hollywood where she was seen on the Colgate Comedy Hour with Eddie Cantor. Soon she'll be taking over Mindy Carson's spot on Club Embassy, singing her own special type of blues.

Handsome Jack Haskell has hit the wide open spaces. He's living and working now in Texas. There's no word to indicate that he'll ever be back in these parts. Song and dance man of the group, Cliff Norton, has been doing comedy bits in N. Y. and is seen occasionally on the Garry Moore show. You can find Jimmy Russell in downtown Chi giving a stellar performance in the original cast of "New Faces." Jim and the entire troupe came here from N. Y. after a master run on Broadway.

The last of those "At Large," singer Bette Chapel, is a happy housewife living in Chicago. She suffered a bad accident recently and is making no immediate TV plans.

Mike and Buff

Mike Wallace, who began here as an announcer, went on to the Chez Show with wife Buff Cobb. They, too, ended up in New York where their informal and conversational 'Mike & Buff' show put them high on the list for guest stints. Mike's latest is his Sunday contribution to the Adventure series over CBS.

Pat Flanagan, well known sportscaster in this town for many years, retired once some five years ago, and took up the more relaxing role of selling real estate in Los Angeles. The silver-haired commentator later came back to Chi to look in on his old ABC buddies, and was promptly offered a contract, which kept him here for a few more years. He resigned from WBKB however, and again called it a day—this time permanently. You'll find him now in Phoenix, Arizona, just fishin', restin' and baskin' in the sun.

Once master of the mixing bowl on WNBQ's cooking show, Eddie Doucette has gone back to his old flavor company, Accent, Inc., where he's prospering nicely in the Public Relations end of things.

Lure of the Coasts

Popular comic Ransom Sherman gained fame via daytime radio shows, and went on to become a pet TV comedian. He's in Hollywood these days, the happy owner of a novelty and trick store . . . situated, of all places, next to the Brown Derby. Sherm does a TV bit now and then—he popped up about a month ago as a butler on "I Love Lucy."

The hosts of the once popular "Pet Shop," Gay and Gail Compton, have moved to Coral Gables, Fla. Gail is half way through his latest project—building a swimming pool in his back yard. In the not too distant future, and on the more lucrative side, they'll have a new program, "Back Yard Zoo," at WTVJ in Miami.

When WBKB was channel 4, Luckey North became Chi's first female announcer. Along with her heavy schedule, she taught TV production at Chicago Music School, but has left it all behind. The lovely Luckey is married to a San Francisco manufacturer, content now to be a full-time wife.

Although these TV pioneers have scattered, Chicagoans won't forget them. These are some of the entertainers who contributed the Chicago touch to the growing TV industry.

Late But Not Least

IF John Harrington, WBBM-TV's new brawny announcer, was a bit delayed in taking the plunge into television, he made a good-sized splash when he finally did.

"Big John" has been in radio almost 25 years and has spent nearly a score of those years as a Windy City broadcaster. But he only crashed the charmed camera circle here last February. He followed up quickly, however, by snaring a second video stanza, a nightly newscast that's time-tabled right after his sports round-up show.

It wasn't timidity that kept the hefty Harrington from exposing his bearish physique to viewers' eyes. He waited until CBS could find the proper video vehicle for him here in Chicago, turning down two N. Y. TV offers.

The Harrington Approach

Now that the fellow's a TV regular, he's apparently recruiting followers at a fast pace. These folks seem to admire the Harrington approach to news and sportscasting. John, no editorialist or crusader, contents himself with a straightforward coverage of events. His shows are well-rounded composites of comments on the news, still photos or movies that center on incidents of interest, and timely interviews with prominent personalities.

The overall effect is seldom dull, and in this, John takes advantage of his greatest asset, an impressive voice. The veteran announcer has a flair for vocal dramatics a la Lowell Thomas.

In appearance, Big John, who towers 6 ft., 3-3/4 inches and weighs 248 pounds, is not so impressive. His suits have more droop than drape, and the expression he wears is a bit too set and stern.

Harrington, who makes no pretense of being a pundit, probably excels as a sports authority rather than as the sage news analyst. He briefs viewers fully on local, national and international happenings, well-tempered with an abundance of human interest items. But essentially he allows them to make their own interpretations.

Choice Assignments

As a sportscaster, Harrington has covered every choice assignment imaginable—the Rose Bowl, the World Series, the Indianapolis Speedway race, etc. This long romance with the world of athletics has not soured him on sports—rather he champions them. "Sports is 99% honest," he asserts, "and should be praised as well as criticized."

John broke into broadcasting in St. Louis in 1929, and by 1936 had settled down for his lengthy stay with CBS here in Chicago. In 1940, he was named WBBM's director of sports. At present, he handles a heavy number of weekly shows—five radio programs and two sessions on TV. Starting work at 6:55 a.m. and finishing his stints at 10:45 p.m., the tireless Harrington is up with the larks and to bed with the night owls. But he apparently thrives on it —and anyway, it's nothing new for him. He once slept, ate and talked in spurts for 27 days while describing a record endurance flight.

DORSEY CONNORS

The Gal's Handy All-Around

MENTION the name "Dorsey" around the Windy City, and most Chicagoans, unless they're hepcats, will start thinking of Connors instead of the Messrs. Tommy and Jimmy. The queenly blonde, whose regal profile has graced channel 5 for many a year—three and one-half, to be exact — has made her name a local household word with her "household hints" and such.

TV's handywoman, Dorsey has made her five-minute nightly sessions on WNBQ a fixed habit for many viewers. The ladies like the tricks, tips and shortcuts she disseminates as well as the styles in dresses, decorations and hairdos she sets. The males—well, they just apparently like Dorsey.

The chic Miss Connors' chief source of fame is her wizardry with wires—coat hangers, that is. The gal can do more with a coat hanger than Paganini could do with a violin or the legendary Casey with a bat. She's devised everything from Christmas ornaments to wall brackets for plants out of these often ornery pieces of equipment.

Dorsey's so adept with hangers that viewers might be inclined to overlook some of her other abilities. For example, she's equally clever with common "throwaway" materials. A little research along this line brought to light five such smart suggestions. All these tidbits of information were culled from the Connors' files and will be included in a book Dorsey intends for publication later in the year.

Dorsey Connors is seen at 10:10 p.m., Mon. thru Fri. on WNBQ (channel 5).

A Steel Wool Holder . . . Cut off a piece of worn-out garden hose. Take a pad of steel wool and stuff a portion of the wool up the rubber tube, which can then be used as a handle. Thus, you will escape the irritation of little wool splinters.

Icebox Dishes . . . Slit a cardboard milk carton lengthwise with a knife. The result will be two fine disposable refrigerator dishes.

Handy Nut Cups . . . Cement a milk bottle cap to a wooden thread spool. Cover it with aluminum foil. The finished product will be a neat little nut cup for your next bridge party. As an added fillip, decorate these little containers with bits of bright crepe paper.

Cookie Cutters . . . Remove top and bottom of a small orange juice can. Tape the top so you won't cut yourself with the sharp steel edge. When finished, you'll have cookie cutters that will cut perfect circles.

Paint Strainers . . . Cut off a rounded piece of old nylon hose. Stretch it taut between two embroidery hoops. This makes an excellent paint strainer.

Rates the Boxers

THIS WEEK'S NETWORK FIGHTS

(Subject to change. Champions are not rated. No. 1 in each division is top contender.)

Friday, June 5th

WILLIE PEP vs. PAT MARCUNE (featherweights), from New York. WNBQ (Channel 5) 9:00 P.M.

Pep is rated 2nd. Fights: 183. Won: 177. Lost: 5. Draws: 1. K.O.'s: 53.

Marcune is rated 9th. Fights: 46. Won: 33. Lost: 11. Draws: 2. K.O.'s: 18.

Pep, the ex-champ, is favored. He is a boxer that will long live in the ring's Hall of Fame. There isn't a move or a trick that he doesn't know.

Marcune is a good puncher when up against a novice like himself. But he'll find that Pep is still a will-o'-the-wisp ringman. His last Garden showing was a winning one against the ex-lightweight champion Lauro Salas. But he recently lost to a preliminary boxer at Miami Beach.

Saturday, June 6th

BILLY GRAHAM vs. CARMEN BASILIO (welterweights), from Syracuse. WBKB (Channel 7) 8:00 P.M.

Graham is rated 3rd. Fights: 118. Won: 100. Lost: 10. Draws: 8. K.O.'s: 25.

Basilio is rated 8th. Fights: 49. Won: 35. Lost: 10. Draws: 4. K.O.'s: 18.

This bout is for the State Championship and is listed for 12 rounds. Commissioner Bob Christenberry, in order to stimulate interest in boxing throughout his state, is reviving these titles, the first such move since 1936 when Bob Pastor and Ray Impellitiere boxed for the heavyweight title.

Graham is favored. He boxes too well for the Up-starter. He has been around almost as long as Pep and knows the movements of the ring as well.

The aggressive Basilio fights very well before his hometown fans. The Memorial Auditorium should be packed for this bout.

Monday, June 8th

RALPH (TIGER) JONES vs. MICKEY LAURENT (middleweights), from Brooklyn. WGN-TV (Channel 9) 8:30 P.M.

Jones is rated 9th. Fights: 37. Won: 28. Lost: 6. Draws: 3. K.O.'s: 7.

Laurent is unrated. Fights: 42. Won: 32. Lost: 7. Draws: 3. K.O.'s: 10.

Jones is favored. He has been a busy boxer since he upset Johnny Bratton last December. He has a pleasing slam-bang style which keeps him in demand.

This is Laurent's second bout in the U. S. His debut on May 4 was an even affair against Tuzo Portuguez. The Frenchman showed he can punch a bit, putting Tuzo on the deck. He'll find Jones a much tougher opponent and a bit harder socker.

Wednesday, June 10

KID GAVILAN vs. ITALO SCORTICHINI (middleweight) in overweight bout from Detroit. WBBM-TV (Channel 4) 9:00 P.M.

Gavilan is the welterweight champion. Fights: 109. Won: 92. Lost: 13. Draws: 4. K.O.'s: 27.

Scortichini is rated 15th. Fights: 38. Won: 31. Lost: 5. Draws: 2. K.O.'s: 9.

Gavilan is strongly favored. He was beaten May 2nd by middleweight Danny Womber, but the Keed wasn't exactly trying hard against an opponent he underestimated.

AFTER Felix Bocchicchio, Jersey Joe Walcott's guardian, and his outspoken attorney were refuted by the Illinois Athletic Commission on their "short count" protest two weeks ago, a local sportscaster attempted to throw another bombshell into the hearings.

"I knew who the officials for the Rocky Marciano-Joe Walcott title fight would be seven days before the bout," the sportscaster said.

IAC Chairman Livingstone Osborne was openly disturbed. If the charge were true, such knowledge could lead to additional ridicule. The names of officials before all bouts are kept top secret to prevent possible bribes.

"Where did you get this information?" asked Osborne.

"From Spike McAdams," came the reluctant reply.

The charge was investigated and Spike McAdams was compelled to submit a signed affidavit denying he ever made such statements. Osborne then filed the charges in the wastebasket.

MAYWOOD RACES ON WMAQ TONIGHT

by WM. A. QUE

THEY'RE OFF! As this traditional shout announces the start of another race on tonight's program at Maywood Park, you sports fans can follow the pacers and trotters at home or at your favorite Saturday night hangout by tuning in Harness Racing over WMAQ tonight from 10:15 to 11:00 P.M. Naturally, it's a lot more fun to be at the track in person, but if you can't, you'll still catch the atmosphere and excitement as ace racecaster Clure Mosher makes the race call. Many of you fans may remember Clure as quite an athlete in the early '40s. He's the same guy who won Little All America honors at Louisville University and a reputation as a rugged pro football player with the Pittsburgh Steelers. Mosher is now the track announcer at Maywood; his ambition is to become a top-flight announcer for all sports. We know you'll like his work tonight. The show will be sponsored by Cafe Bohemia, a restaurant that knows how to satisfy your demands for good food.

CHEERS FOR FRAN AND MONTGOMERY

by JACK MABLEY

The question may have been asked, "Where is the mean, carping Mabley we grew to know and despise?" The column has been all sweetness and light lately. Has the man gotten soft or sold out to the networks?

Neither. A couple of months ago I stopped writing a daily newspaper column on TV. Since that time I have watched television only for pleasure—watched when I felt like it, and not because I had to.

This makes a tremendous difference in one's attitude toward the TV business, and it should be reflected in this space. I've kind of come to like the stuff.

And that apology brings us to Minute Reviews:

This Is Your Life: They never had a better subject than Fran Allison, who won everyone's heart just by being her wonderful self. Ralph Edwards has done very well with Chicago people on his show with Fran, Virginia Marmaduke and Rock Hudson.

Your Figure Ladies: I don't watch this (my figure is shot, even if I were eligible to watch) but evidence of the program remains around the house even at night. "Ooooh, groan, ohhhhh," complains the boss." Aching muscles—too much Paul Fogarty.

Ding Dong School: It's no pleasure to report that most of the kids on our block have stopped watching. Maybe they're fickle, but a more likely explanation is that their busy little minds have advanced faster than the school curriculum.

Robert Montgomery Presents: Robert Montgomery presented himself in John O'Hara's Appointment in Samarra. He turned in one of the finest acting jobs seen on television. Largely because of his performance and excellent casting the hour of television captured beautifully the spirit and tone of O'Hara's story. It's an accomplishment which eludes 99 per cent of the television producers.

The Name's the Same: One of the things I tired of first in television was the cuteness of the panelists. Joan Alexander is a pretty female, witty, urbane, and just cold enough to drive me to FM.

What's My Line: Ditto show, ditto Arlene, Ditto Dorothy.

Who Said That: Who cares?

Music Counter: WBBM-TV's 5-minutes of music each evening brings talented and personable people, but 5 minutes is too short. It seems like a gyp, and will be even gyppier when the show gets commercials. Make it 10 or 15 minutes.

The Weatherman: Comfortable Clint does his fine job month after month, unchallenged as just the right man for weather.

Fireside Theatre: When Berle was hitting 70 plus ratings, this program, riding along on the shirttails, made excellent ratings, and my faith in the selectivity of the TV audience fell. But now that Berle has come to earth, so has Fireside Theatre, an ordinary film drama which, according to the latest sample I saw, maintains the literary standards of a True Confessions magazine.

5 SHORT, SHORT DRAMA—Tale
It's easy to commit a crime when you think you have a "Perfect Alibi."

DEAR BOSS:

Did you catch the Tee-Vee Tee-Hee on the opening of "Your Big Moment" show last week? Melvyn Douglas, the old movie smoovie, fumbled through the show introduction and ended up on this note of gay abandon: ". . . And so I hope you'll each write me a letter and tell me the kind of experience you'd like . . . ah, to ah . . . well, . . . experience." Melvyn must do a take-off on Robert Benchley one day.

That Joe E. Brown Circus Hour (every 4th Tuesday) is too short on circus and too long to the hour. If that's the best Buick can turn out then when better TV shows are built I don't think Buick will build 'em.

Jackie Gleason is a funny man in a variety show sketch but as an actor in a full length Studio One drama, "The Laugh-Maker" . . . well, he certainly didn't unhorse Thomas Mitchell or Raymond Massey. In all fairness to Jackie though, I don't think even Tom or Ray could have made A. J. Russell's script believable. The author no doubt wanted to stir up sympathy for the clown-character Jackie played but as it turned out all my sympathy went to the audience.

Now that "Kill the Umpire" and "Slide Willie, Slide" are again echoing in boy soprano shrieks across Little League diamonds -- it's time for talk about another emergency.

Little League Baseball is fine (makes good TV excitement) and it makes an excellent training ground for future Cub and Sox stars -- but what about Chicago's great TV Sportscaster?

We also need a Tiny Talker's Talent Pool to do the announcing at the Little League parks as future replacements for WGN-TV. It's true Jack looks as solid as a brick house but some day he'll need a rest from counting all that money and then where would we be? CHUB

All About Balloons and Waffle Batter

BOB HOWARD and FRANK WAYNE, idea men from the producing firm of Goodson and Todman, dream up 20 stunts a week for Beat the Clock. Six of these are picked after a long tryout on Thursday for use on the show Saturday night.

At 1 P.M., the six stunts are given their final test to make sure they are neither too hard nor too easy, and that they are funny. Bud Collyer, the show's emcee, and Frank Heller, director, supervise this trial run. Also on hand are stand-ins, and out-of-work actors who pick up five dollars an hour by serving as guinea pigs in testing the stunts.

One of the stunts involves using a thin stick to shove a string of six balloons through a hole in a panel. The stand-in tries and tries, finally gives up in despair. Then Collyer, acting as if he had done this all his life, steps up and shoves the balloons through. The stunt is kept in the show.

Another stunt is called the "schlongg." For this one, the first stand-in lies down. Another stand-in, a girl, pours waffle batter on a sponge fastened to a string. The idea is to get enough batter on the sponge so that it will hit the man in the face. It does.

Bud Collyer, center, times balloon stunt with aid of Allan Chester and Vivian Senise.

On the regular show, a wife will do this to her husband. Wives always enjoy these stunts.

At 2 P.M., Roxanne and Bill Shipley rehearse the commercials. At 5 P.M., the final dress rehearsal is run off and the show cut to the required half hour.

Collyer, bursting with cheer all afternoon, is still in high spirits. The stand-ins check out, their stint completed.

Beat the Clock is ready for another round of prizes for folks who want to romp in front of a TV camera without worrying about dignity.

Eddie Fisher: producers are at fault.

Reviews

The EDDIE FISHER Show

EDDIE FISHER is terrific, but his TV producers are not doing right by him in his new show.

The youthful baritone's vocal capabilities are well known and certainly rate him all the fame and fortune he has achieved in the last several years. The dramatic quality he incorporates into his songs, moreover, proves he has acting potentialities. But as an actor, Eddie still needs experience and careful direction. And that's a factor which his producers haven't considered sufficiently in setting up his twice-weekly program (NBC, Wednesdays and Fridays).

A 'Book' Show

The format has Eddie attempting a "book" show; that is, each program carries a story line to which he can peg his tunes. But without the adequate direction he still requires, the script serves only to distract from his singing. At this stage of his career, he'd do better if they permitted him just to stand before the cameras and belt out his tunes, a la Perry Como and Jane Froman.

Once this problem is ironed out, Eddie should have little trouble in establishing himself just as solidly in TV as he has in recordings and night clubs. Unlike some of the modern crop of wailing baritones, Eddie possesses an honest and powerful voice with which he renders full justice both to popular ballads and the latest novelty songs. He also has youthful good looks and a winsome personality which are displayed to advantage on TV, as attested to by the screams of the bobby-soxers in his studio audience.

No Expense Spared

No expense has been spared to give Eddie the best in production mountings. He has costly looking sets. His sponsor also provides him with well-known guest stars such as Anna Maria Alberghetti and Joni James. Youth of the talent indicates the sponsor is slanting the show at teenage customers, but it's entertaining enough for adults as well.

Don Ameche serves as program host and also delivers the commercials. He tries too hard to be affable, often coming up with a sickly grin for what should be a pleasant smile. Camera work on the show is good but the sound engineers should let Eddie's big voice boom out to its fullest. Axel Stordahl and his orchestra provide fine musical backing.

Charles Russell and aide: they often have a very hot chiller.

DANGER probably comes closer than any other TV show to achieving the macabre, weird atmosphere engendered by such old-time radio chillers as Inner Sanctum. But, apparently because TV can seldom do full justice to supernatural and horror themes, the show (CBS, Tuesday nights) reaches this dramatic peak only occasionally.

When Danger is hot, it's very, very hot. Such stories as the adaptation of Saki's Sredni Vashtar, staged early in the program's career, are masterpieces of TV drama. Too often, though, the show slips back into the groove of suspense-type melodrama followed by other TV shows. Despite this, its entertainment quotient is consistently high and the program rates a tune-in each Tuesday night.

Directors Mold Success

Danger is the handiwork of Charles Russell and Sidney Lumet, who have been producing and directing it for several years. Their lengthy tenure is easily discernible in the ease and smoothness with which it plays each week. The casts seldom include top-name stars. Most of the actors, however, are well known in TV and invariably contribute well-rounded characterizations to boost the program's quality.

The show often turns to current events for its subject matter and has come up at times with stories which rival the actual event for interest. On a recent telecast, a highly-suspenseful tale was woven around the governor of a state who set up a crime investigating committee to rout out the local crime syndicate. The story might have been drawn from newspaper headlines of that week.

Announcer Visibly Shaken

Richard Stark, one of the more popular commercial announcers on TV, handles the sponsor's plugs on Danger. He does his usual standout job on the commercials but, more interesting to viewers, is the way he himself reacts to the scripts being enacted.

Indications are that Stark may be getting the thrill which it is assumed is also affecting the viewer. Or, more likely, it may be that he is just a good actor. Often when the cameras break in on him for the commercial, he appears visibly shaken. His reactions, in fact, are probably a good measurement of the show's dramatic qualities.—R. S.

"I'm On Your Side"

Ken Murray Finds It Safer To String Along With The Audience

"IT WAS a jungle scene for one of my television shows and Laurie Anders, our little cowgirl, brought on the movie chimpanzee, Bonzo, for added jungle atmosphere," Ken Murray said.

"I was dressed in the conventional pith helmet and shorts of an African explorer. As Laurie and I started into a series of gags, the chimp nonchalantly began to pluck the hairs of my legs.

"The audience laughs were so loud that no one even heard the dialogue. You know, if that chimp could have used a typewriter, he would now be my head writer."

This philosophy of sharing laughs with man or beast alike, Murray contends, really is responsible for his success in 25 years of show business.

"I become the liaison between the show and the audience," he explains. "In a half-hour program I am usually on for no more than eight or ten minutes. I represent you, the audience. For example, I'll just stand at one end of the stage and look at the girls performing. If they tell a bum joke I'll turn and shrug: 'They're pretty bad, but what can I do?' You see, I'm on your side."

Once Singing Salesman

As a veteran entertainer whose colorful career spans vaudeville, stage, films and, now, television, after a start as a singing salesman in a record shop, Murray's definite opinions bear the authority of experience.

"Television isn't theater and it isn't movies," he declares. "It's personality. It's what you are. It is as important to be interesting as funny. Look at Arthur Godfrey. He's not a performer, he just talks interestingly, with some humor.

Murray knows that a chorus helps make show successful. These are the Glamorlovelies.

"There's a theory in television that the star must stay on from start to finish. It's too hard that way and the individual destroys himself. Think of some of the stars who did that during the past three years. How many of them are missing now?

"My own belief is that viewers must know and like you, as a person. I've never been the critics' favorite because I put on a show that may seem sloppy and unrehearsed but it does give the audience a feeling of having come over to my place for some informal entertainment. I try to make it painless so they don't squirm. I'm not always performing—I just try to talk to people."

Variety Shows Welcome

Although there is a scarcity of them on TV now, Murray asserts variety shows are always welcome since they "satisfy all types of entertainment seekers, just like old-time vaudeville did. Omnibus has some of the ingredients but it mostly lacks the common touch and is inclined to be too arty."

As to acting techniques, "television tones you down," he says. "Facial expressions, body movements and voice volume aren't as broad because the screen is small. The actors who don't recognize this fail, just as those did years back who came from the stage to movies and were performing for the second balcony instead of the screen."

Praises Skelton Style

Scanning the contemporary scene, Murray adjudges Red Skelton as "best of all."

"He has a Chaplinesque quality, Ken says. "He does everything the rest of us can do—and falls, too. Whatever else, we must concede Chaplin was a talented genius, his pantomime was a wonderful sight. Skelton has the same approach in his grimaces, pathos and gestures.

"Jerry Lewis is excellent but it is still too early to tell if he will mature into greatness. One secret is never trying for the full quota of effectiveness, for fear of going overboard. That's why I confine my skits to five minutes instead of ten or twelve."

Proof is in the doing, in any trade, and Murray has evidently mastered the knack of amusing folks. He was born Kenneth Abner Doncourt, in New York City, some 50 years ago. He is a member of a stage family. His first vocational wish was to become an actor. After schooling in Kingston, New York, he became a singing salesman in a record shop, until a vaudeville act passing through town required another hand. He got the job, changed his name to Murray for the sake of billing.

starred in A Night At Earl Carroll's.

In 1942 he created the Blackouts in Hollywood, a revue that lasted seven years and was seen by more than 5,000,000 people during that record-breaking run. In 1947, he produced the picture Bill and Coo, a novelty film feature with 300 love birds. It won an Academy Award.

Murray made his television debut in 1949, in New York, with a costly variety-type show. Last February he returned to Hollywood for Time To Smile. While active on this he worked on The Marshal's Daughter project, which includes a song, book, series of comic books, film, and TV show—all of the same title and featuring his

An experienced showman, Murray has mastered the technical end of television.

Less than four years later, he played the Palace in Manhattan, then the zenith of vaudeville success. During the following years of featured touring, he also appeared in such movies as Half Marriage and Leathernecking. He made his radio debut with Rudy Vallee in 1933. His Broadway stage appearances included Earl Carroll's Vanities and Sketchbook. Later he launched the Laugh With Ken Murray radio show, followed by Hollywood Hotel and Texaco Star Theater. Afterwards, he co-starred with Alice Faye in You're A Sweetheart and protege, Laurie Anders. The movie will be released this summer, and the TV show will be seen in the autumn.

He is now married to the former Betty Lou Walters, who once auditioned for a role in his Blackouts. They have one daughter, Pamela, born last year. He has two sons by a previous marriage.

Murray lives quietly in a side street off Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood, with one room of the house filled with all the albums, scrolls, awards, and miscellaneous memories collected in a lifetime in show business.

TV in the news

THERE'S a hot race on between U. S. and British electronics scientists in the development of three-dimensional TV. Britain claims the lead so far, having had a working 3-D process since early 1953. They call their 3-D, "Deepies."

For natural history scholars, the New York American Museum of Natural History's Adventure is good news. The Museum is presenting the hour-long program each Sunday over CBS-TV. The programs will help explain how we humans ever got here on earth in the first place.

Illinois' State Senate unanimously passed the Connors Bill which provides a prison term and a $500 fine for libel on television. Giving the TV station executives a break, the law emphasizes that they cannot be held responsible if they had no advance indication that a libelous statement or action was planned.

A new light, portable camera for programming whodunits has been acquired by CBS-TV. Equipped with sound, the camera will capture on-the-scene atmosphere much like the old roving microphone idea.

Rubberized props and scenic effects may soon be used on some televised programs. Designer A. A. Ostrander says that the material is light enough to be moved easily. In addition, it's flame-proof and practically unbreakable.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson, (D., Colo.) reports there are 65 large cities with no TV stations. Some cities, such as St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., have only one. Senator Johnson is urging fast action on the 650 applications for new TV stations now pending before the FCC.

FINE TUNING

By OLLIE CRAWFORD

TELEVISION sponsors seek answer to short boxing bouts. It's embarrassing when the commercial is longer than the fight.

They started working on this after Marciano knocked out Walcott and 12 singing commercials with one punch.

The razor company was all ready for a big sales talk when Rocky knocked the wind out of their sales. That was the fight where the referee proved the hand is quicker than the seat of the pants. It was sponsored by this razor firm and the company just wishes you could change blades that fast.

The only commercial they did get in began: "Men, do you have sensitive chins?"

The TV picture looked like a Rembrandt because they couldn't get Joe off the canvas. By the time one guy fixed his vertical tuning, Joe was horizontal. By the time he got a clear picture, everything looked fuzzy to Walcott.

The TV rights cost $300,000, which is an awful lot for one sitting.

The company didn't insist that Walcott "look sharp." They just wanted him to look alive.

Nancy Marchand: took a cab.

Vaughn Taylor, Una O'Connor, and Patricia Wheel recall many roles.

Jackie Cooper, Peggy Ann Garner, with Joe DiReda, Joey Walsh, Denise Thomas.

TO CELEBRATE the sixth anniversary of Kraft TV Theater, the program's sponsors staged a "Come As You Were" party at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. All actors and actresses who had appeared on the show were invited to attend garbed in their Kraft costumes.

Costing about $20,000, this production was presented without commercials and probably brought more actors together than a Cecil B. DeMille epic.

There was no birthday cake—not even a cheesecake.

Marc Breaux, Mary Sinclair, Frank Alexander.

Gaily garbed are Noel Leslie, Stewart Bradley, Betty Anne Nyman and Judson Laire.

GARTERS COME FROM UNDER COVER IN EDITH HEAD'S Fashions

THE men's old-fashioned sleeve garter has been revived by women this year. This novel idea in accessories, which is being worn in the office, at the beach, and with both afternoon and evening dresses, is the real "conversation-piece" of the season.

This is an ideal decoration for the career girl's old stand-by, the shirtwaist. An arm garter adorned with conservative emblems, stickpins or unusual button arrangements is permissible for the well-dressed woman in the office.

For decorative purposes, the girls who wish to dress up their beach attire with arm garters might string sea shells on an elastic band. Also, for the beach, and only at the beach, you can have matching bands, one for the arm and one for the ankle.

Ladies attending an afternoon tea party, a garden show or any daytime gathering can feminize the arm garter by sewing on fresh flowers or by gathering material to make a tiny frill. Another suggestion for daytime wear is plain black velvet bands bejeweled by your favorite clip or pin.

Instead of the usual costume jewelry, arm garters studded with sequins, or any kind of glitter can be used to glamorize the most simple evening dress.

These arm garters, conservatively decorated so that they are in good taste, are real eye-catchers and are sure to give you a lift by dressing up any costume.

The Dancer's Big Chance

JUST before the 1951 Belmont stakes, Sonny Whitney and a friend were in the walking ring gazing upon a beautiful chestnut colt wearing a narrow white blaze on his face and Dave Gorman on his withers, Gorman being attired in the Whitney silks.

"He looks like a great colt," the friend said.

"Perhaps he is," Whitney answered, "but I'm building no extravagant hopes. When I started, my father told me that if I got one great horse in 25 years I'd be doing well."

At the Belmont Ball the previous evening there'd been an auction for the benefit of the Cancer Fund and Whitney had paid $1,600 for a shoe from the Belmont winner—still to be identified. A few minutes after leaving the paddock, he owned four such shoes, with the colt Counterpoint nailed to them.

To make amends for his owner's unnecessary expenditure, Counterpoint went on to give weight, age and distance to his fields and win undisputed acknowledgment as America's champion three-year-old. He raced long enough to repay Whitney with purses of $284,575.

Last year Mr. Walter M. Jeffords' One Count won the Belmont stakes and he, too, finished the season generally ranked as the best three-year-old. This year . . . .

Well, the point is that the Belmont Stakes, to be run June 13 over the sandy loam of Long Island and the television screens of half the Nation, is the true "test of champions." The Kentucky Derby is America's most famous horse race. The Preakness is older than the Derby. The Belmont is older and greater than either.

At a mile and a half—two furlongs longer than the Derby and five-sixteenths farther than the Preakness—the Belmont remains the classic test.

In six of the last seven years, excepting only 1950 when Middleground was defeated by Hill Prince, the Belmont winner completed the season as champion of his division.

In the list of 84 Belmont winners are many of the most famous names in American racing.

This year no one mentions racing without speaking of the gray horse, Native Dancer. There is a curious parallel between the warning about great horses which Sonny Whitney heard from his father and an observation by Bill Winfrey, who trains Native Dancer for Alfred Vanderbilt.

"Tell the truth," Bill said, "A man my age doesn't deserve a horse like him. I'm 37. My father, training horses all his life, is 68 and he never had the luck to handle a horse like him. And I know so many trainers—some training horses 50 years and more, working hard, knowing their business—who never had the luck to get anybody like this horse. Tell the truth, a man of 37 doesn't deserve it."

Things even up, though. Bill Winfrey didn't deserve what he got in the Derby, either.
